ing that delivered in the Garden: and Gentlemen: The presence of audience to-hight indicates an in-this campaign which is gratifying to realize the importance of the ques-olved. I am not vain enough to beterest in this campaign which is gratifying terest in this campaign which is gratifying to all who resilize the importance of the questions involved. I am not value nough to believe that any large part of your enthusiasm is intended as a personal tribute to the candidates, for in a cause like this the individual counts for nothing except as he may be the instrument used by the people to carry out their own will. I am glad to defend our cause in this great centre of population, of industry and of wealth. To say that the people gathered here who support our cause are the enemies of honest wealth is a slander which could not be uttered without the one who uttered it knew it to be false. [Applause] we are not opposed to that wealth which comes as the reward of honest wealth which comes as the reward of honest tooil, and is enjoyed by those who give to society something in return for that which society bestows upon them. The Democratic party to-day is not only not the enemy of honest wealth, but the Democratic party to-day is the best friend of that wealth that represents ability of muscle or of mind employed in its accumulation. We draw the line between that wealth which is a just compensation for services readered and that wealth which simply measures the advantage which one citizen has taken over many citizens [Applause], and no honest man need tear the success of the Democratic party. [Applause,] The Democratic party shows its honesty by stating what it benevos and telling the people what it will do. Compare our platform runs the evidence of sincerity, and through the Republican platform runs the evidence of sincerity, and through the Republican platform runs the evidence of sincerity, and through the Republican platform runs the evidence of sincerity, and through the Republican platform and any candid man must say that through our platform runs the evidence of sincerity, and through the Republican platform part spend; its time congratulating it selfupon the existence of things which it did not out a and shirkin

SO WE ARE NOT PROSPEROUS.

They say we are prosperous. Who is we? There is no doubt that the Republican Administration is good for some, but who is we? [Cries of "Hunna, Hunna"] Don't tride with a great name. [Laughter] The array contractor can be prosperous under the Republican Administration. The trust magnate can be prosperous under the Republican Administration. The man who gets special privileges at the hands of the Government can prosper under a Republican Administration. The man who can use the instrumentality of the Government for private gains and the Government itself for public blunder can profit under a Republican Administration. [Anplause] But I deny that the wealth producers of this country are enjoying their share of the Government's productions. Take the farmer and take the wices that newall, and see how long it would take a farmer to accumulate a portion that would be large enough to class him among the rich men of the motion. Take the laboring man and see how long it would take him tadependent. Tell me that the farmer prospers when every decade shows that he possesses a less and less percentage of the wealth of the country. Tell me the laboring man must send his son and his daughter out to work to help support the family, when they ought to be in school. [Great applause,] Is this prosperity? [Cries of No. no. ] My friends when conditions prevail among the great mass of the world, for the world has no example of the same being furnished by the unjust legislation in his country aithough he can pay his honest debts, and when we chillenge public attention to work is sountry aithough he can pay his honest debts, and when we chillenge public attention to what is going on, the Republicans refuse to

My friends, you cannot expect relief from the Republican party. [A voice: "That is so."] The President in his inaugural address in March, 1897, used the language which I am going to read to you. Indemnity should be granted to none who violate the law, whether municipalities, corporations or rates of transportation. This purpose will be steadily pursued both by the enforcement of the laws now in existence and the recommendation and support of such new statutes as may be necessary to carry them into effect.

There is a promise to enforce existing laws and to recommend new laws. I charge that the President has neither enforced the existing laws nor recommended new ones. His Attorney-General draws his salary and permits the trusts to grow and oppress the people. And the President has allowed four sessions of Congress to convene and adjourn and has never yet recommended a remedy for the trust, and the Republicans who are determined to support the ticket no matter what the President does, no matter what Republican officials do, no matter what position the party takes, are now refusing to discuss the trust question. The nearest approach that you can get a Republican to the trust question is to get him to say that there are good trusts and bad trusts and then he will make affidavit that he cannot tell the difference between them. Haughter!

"WE WILL DESTROY THE TRUSTS."

The Republicans have no plans to destroy trusts. We have. We say put on the free list every trust-made article in order that a trust can no longer hide bekind a tariff wall and plunder people at home "with him) prices while plunder people at home with high prices whi it sells abroad in competition with the world.

Why not squeeze the water out of the stock? Is there a laboring man who can object to squeezing the water out of the stock by a corporation? Why, if a laboring man works for a corporation that has watered stock doesn't he know that that corporation must collect enough from the people to pay dividends on its fictious capital? That if a corporation shall have no watered stock the corporation could spend more in wages than it does; but instead of paying money in wages it pays money in

I did not make the treaty; I am not responsible for a treaty that gave independence to Cuba and denied it to the Philippines. The President is responsible for that and if he had given to the Filipinos the same assurance of independence that he gave to the Cubans not a gun would have been fired in Manila. When the treaty came before the Senate it was necessary to reject it or to ratify it. To reject it would be to throw it back into the hands of the President. To ratify it would be to place the subject into the hands of the American people and I preferred to trust the American people and I preferred to trust the American people to deal honestly with the Filipino rather than to trust the President to make another treaty. That treaty severed the chains of connection with the Filipinos according to European ideas. But that treaty could not confer upon us a title to the Philippines because we must deal with the Filipinos according to American principles and not according to European fight a thousand and two can beat ten thousand people. Let this nation announce to the world that it is not going to steal the Philippine Islands and then say to all other nations. Thou shall not steal," and they will not be stolen. [Loud applause] No nation in Europe would be willing that any other European nation should have the Philippine Islands and no European nation would provoke a war with us to get the Philippine Islands. Let them understand that in the first place in the hearts of the people is found this love of liberty. Let this nation stand before the world as the exponent of the doctrine of self-government. We are not afraid for this nation to show a difference between our ideals and European ideals. We are not afraid to have this nation strike a blow for liberty. They say that others will laugh at us if the nation gets out of the Philippine Islands. Let them laugh. There was plenty of laughter at our forefathers when the Declaration of Independence was given to the world, but this nation has lived and been the inspiring cause of revolutions and of the formation of republics. Let kings laugh and emperors laugh. Let those laugh who despise the people and deny their right to a veice in their own government, but let this nation stand erect. Let it prove that there is reality in our professions and every human being struggling against oppression will raise its eyes toward Heaven and thank God that there is one republic left that dares do right [applause]—a republic upon whose flag there is no blood [more applause]. Tell me, do you want our flag to be feared? I want our flag to be loved by every human being. [Loud applause]. Do you want blood to be put on it? I want to have it just what it was intended to be—an inspiration to the human race.

The President in December of 1897 said that forcible annexation meant criminal aggression and was contrary to our code of morality, and every Republican said. "Hooray for a President who knows a code of morality, and every Republican said. "Hooray for a President who knows a code of morality, and now we have 65,000 soldiery 7,000 miles away from home forcing annexation upon an unwilling people and Republicans say: "Hooray for a President who doesn't let a little thing like a code of morality stand in the way of progress." Its tough—but they say they like it [Applause]

In December of '97 the President said it was our plain duty to give free trade to Porto Rico and all the Republicans said "Amen." The Secretary of War said that the highest expression of justice and good faith required it, and Republicans said "Amen." The Porto Ricans petitioned for it, the Governor General of Porto Rico said that the Porto Ricans must have it, and the President said "So let it be." The member in Congress who had the member in Congress who had the in charge introduced a free trade bill, and the Republicans sent a free trade to Ricans must have it, and the White House a bill tearing the flag from the Constitution and fastening upon Porto Rico the same infamous policy against which our forefathers rebelled a hundred and twenty-four years ago. [Applause.]

And now the Republicans are prepared to defend the Porto Rico bill and say it is our plain duty to violate our plain duty. It's toughbut they like it. [Lazgicher and applause.]
